

Lloyd Griffiths, Dean
School of Information Technology and Engineering

Cordially invites you to a lecture by

The 2005 Outstanding Research Faculty Award Recipient

Gheorghe Tecuci, PhD

Professor of Computer Science
School of Information Technology and Engineering

“From Personal Computers to Learning Assistants”

Wednesday, September 21, 2005
3 p.m.

Mason Hall, Room D3 A and B
Fairfax Campus
George Mason University

RSVP by September 16
Jo Boukhira at 703-993-1520 or
E-mail itevents@gmu.edu

Reception in Mason Hall Atrium following lecture
Directions to the Parking Deck enclosed

Gheorghe Tecuci, PhD

Professor of Computer Science

Dr. Tecuci is a professor in the Department of Computer Science and director of the Learning Agents Center in the School of Information Technology and Engineering at George Mason University. He is also a member of the Romanian Academy and former chair of Artificial Intelligence in the Center for Strategic Leadership of the U.S. Army War College. He received his MS degree in computer science from the Polytechnic University of Bucharest in 1979, graduating first among all the computer science students at the Polytechnic Universities of Romania. He received two PhD degrees in computer science, one from the University of Paris-South, in July 1988, and one from the Polytechnic University of Bucharest, in December 1988. Dr. Tecuci has published more than 150 papers, most of them on artificial intelligence. His research focuses on creating and applying a general theory of how noncomputer scientists can develop their own software assistants.

The School of Information Technology and Engineering thanks its corporate partners.

